BONNIE WELLER

Whether by day or night, a drive over Laureles Grade affords shifting scenes of startling beauty. And it can be exhilarating or soothing, depending upon your mood. In the slanting rays of an evening sun, there are brushstrokes of light and shadow among the ridges and far-off rolling hills. With a silver moon riding high, stars shimmer ice-blue in the magic night. The Grade is like a woman who changes faces with the time of day and the weather, but manages to remain fresh and glowing....

The Monterey County Planning Commission's report on Laureles Grade Road states: "The Grade Road is in essence a 5½-mile sky ride, rising from an elevation of 420 feet at the Salinas-Monterey Scenic Highway junction to a level of 1200 feet, then descending to Carmel Valley Road at an elevation of 250 feet. The road passes through hills which vary from gentle to steep, covered with clusters of oaks which gradually diminish on the Carmel Valley side."

Back in the '30s, Salinas residents traveled over the scenic road to reach Robles del Rio, the popular resort. Owners of orchards and ranches in Carmel Valley also used the Grade for their comings and goings. Since World War II, the population explosion in the Valley has greatly increased traffic across this road.

For 25 years, Laureles Grade has been in a master plan for Monterey County as a scenic route. In 1943, the Grade appeared on the Monterey County Park and Recreation Plan. Later, it was shown on the Monterey Peninsula Area Plan, which was adopted in 1966. And it is on the Monterey County General Plan.

Monterey County is recognized throughout the State, as well as nationally, for its development of scenic roadways. The county is known throughout the world for its picturesque environment. No better evidence of this unique atmosphere exists than in the percentage of creative people who have chosen the Monterey Peninsula as their home base.

And now Laureles Grade, commonly referred to as Los Laureles Grade, has the distinction of becoming the first county road in California to be designated a Scenic Road. Next week, on Wednesday, October 1, the Grade will be so dedicated.

The official ribbon-cutting ceremony will take place at 11:00 a.m., two and one-half miles up Laureles Grade from Carmel Valley Road. Herb Brownell, chairman of the Dedication Committee, says there will be many state and county officials present for the ceremony.

When the road was partially completed in 1957, a ceremony was also held. Valley residents and visitors donned Spanish costumes for the occasion. The Spanish motif will be used for this event, also. And the Trail & Saddle Club's Color Guard will be present.

Following the dedication, everyone will gather for a barbecue at the Carmel Valley Trail & Saddle Club grounds. Committee members from the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce, in charge of the details of the dedication ceremonies, are: Bob Kvenild, Tom Verga, Louis Gardner, Rex White, Paul Porter, Ed Marcucci, Ed DeMars, and Lew Allaire.

Laureles Grade links Carmel Valley Road to the Salinas-Monterey Highway 68. At the entranceway in Carmel Valley, the scenic route takes you around a sweeping curve, past rambling post-adobe ranch houses. Many trees fill the landscape - flowering fruit trees, tall pines, stately eucalyptus, leafy sycamores, and timeless oaks.

As you climb upward, mountains and hills loom ahead. Some are treeless, some studded with scrub-oaks. As the road swings to the left and winds up through the hills, that breathtaking quality of the Grade engulfs you. Each turn brings another spectacular moment of beauty.

At the 1200-foot level, the scene changes from the west to the east. At this point, you can see Fort Ord, Monterey Bay, Salinas, and the Gabilan Range - as well as the Mount Toro area. The Valley is also visible at certain turnouts. Corral de Tierra, San Benancio, and mountain ranges both near and far are part of the sweeping view from the Grade as it begins its plummeting descent. Here, the air is bright and clear - redolent with earth smells.

At sunset, the golden hills are bathed in a suffused radiance, like a young girl blushing from a boy's spoken words of adulation. Lacy-textured leaves shimmer in the evening sun. Toward the Bay, the pale purple sky is streaked with cerise.

On a cold winter day, the hills stand silent and remote, waiting in a half-moribund state, for silver fingers of rain to transform them. Then comes January and February, when they become voluptuous maidens dressed in ceremonial green to herald spring.

Night reveals, at this lofty altitude, a sparkling fairyland in the distance. A fabulous sea of lights from Salinas faintly glimmers below. And the hills become Spanish maidens, faces hidden behind black mantillas, wearing stars as high gemmed combs.

Of course, at other times, the twisting Grade is covered with a mysterious veil of fog. At these times, the drive is an adventure requiring utmost care.

So, we each enjoy our own scenic road in different ways. It is a drive to contemplate in wordless appreciation, or with ooh's and ah's of delight. It is a drive to reflect upon, putting us in proper perspective to our individual environments. Intimacy is bred between lovers in the sharing of this romantic ride. Nostalgia overtakes others who are troubled or disappointed. Mother Nature is indeed the great healer, and looking once more upon her bedazzling face can send your soul soaring. She is indeed awesome and deserves our allegiance.

FROM TRAIL TO MODERN HIGHWAY . . .

ROAD COMPLETED 9 YEARS AGO

Just 14 years ago it was Laureles Trail, a narrow twisting road barely 14 feet wide. Many curves could not be made at speeds over 10 miles per hour.

It took 4½ years to build what is now Laureles Grade Road, a splendid scenic highway. Travel time for the 6 miles was cut in half.

Now, nine years after it was completed, Laureles Grade Road will be formally dedicated as the state's first official scenic county highway.

Times have changed in many other ways since then. The total cost of the road was only $810,139. Federal aid provided $456,525, state funds $213,163 and county funds $140,451.

The old Laureles Trail predated the turn of the century and the prevalence of the automobile by many years. The uneven surface was at most, 16 feet wide, and the road surface consisted of oil on native soil. Maintenance costs even for this road were excessive due to the absence of imported base material and to the lack of adequate drainage.

FIRST DESIGNED FROM AIR

The Laureles Grade relocation project was laid out and designed by the Monterey County Road Department, under the supervision of Bruce McClain, from aerial contour maps produced by stereoscopic interpretation of aerial photography. The aerial survey was made in February, 1955, and the completed maps were delivered to the county the following April.

The road department made no preliminary ground survey for this project. It was the first Monterey County Highway project to be laid out and designed completely from aerial contour maps.

The project was built in four phases, since available funds were limited. Each project was laid out so that construction began and ended on the then existing old road. In this way each section became an independent construction unit, and the entire length of any of the first three segments could be utilized singly or collectively.

Construction of the first project was started on Nov. 27, 1955 and the last section was completed on April 14, 1960.

The first two projects involved grading and temporary surfacing of 5¼ miles of roadway. The roadbed was built to a width of 36 to 44 feet, with two 12-foot traffic lanes. Minimum allowable curve radius was 250 feet and maximum grade was limited to 10 percent.

Project 1 construction involved 2¼ miles of new road extending from a point .7 mile north of Carmel Valley Road to the summit of the old Los Laureles Grade.

SUMMIT 90 FEET HIGHER

Project 2 extended the first section from the old summit through to a new summit to State Route 117 on the Salinas Valley end. The new alignment increased the summit elevation of the road by 90 feet. To eliminate the need for excessive grading, the new road was aligned to follow the ridge top, dividing the Carmel River drainage basin from that of the Salinas River, for .6 mile before descending on sweeping curves to join the old Grade Road just north of its junction with Robley Road.

The new alignment shorted the length of the road by about ¾ mile.

Project 3 construction involved paving parts of the 1st and 2nd projects with 2 inches of plant mix surfacing after 6 inches of imported base material was first placed over portions of the previously sealcoated surface.

Project 4 consisted of constructing a new road for .85 mile north of Carmel Valley Road; realigning the first .15 mile of the 1st section to eliminate three short curves; and paving .65 mile of the existing roadway.

The new road now provided a modern highway and a direct link over the Sierra de Salinas ridge of the Santa Lucia Range between Carmel Valley and the greater Salinas Valley, and all points, north, south and east.

The new roadway immediately became heavily used. In 1955 the average daily traffic count was 200 cars per day; in 1956 it had already jumped to 580 cars per day and by May, 1960, it had reached 980 cars per day.

It is considerably above this figure now, and by 1980, it is expected that the traffic count will approach 5,000 cars per day.

AT AN EARLIER DEDICATION of the opening of Laureles Grade Road, Congressman Burt Talcott cuts the ribbon.

Many dignitaries to attend Scenic Road dedication

Many dignitaries will be on hand next Wednesday for the formal dedication of Laureles Grade as a scenic highway.

John F. Maloney, deputy director of the State Division of Public Works, will represent Director James A. Moe, who is unable to attend.

Others who have been invited to attend:

Bob Nance and Al Carlson, state highway department, Sacramento.

Harry Schmidt, chairman of the Advisory Committee for Master Planning and Scenic Highways, Sacramento.

E. F. Gregory, district highway engineer, of San Luis Obispo.

Assemblyman Bob Wood, State Senator Donald L. Grunsky of Watsonville, Sheriff Jack Davenport, Supervisors Warren Church, Ellis Tavernetti, Loren Smith and Arthur Atteridge.

Supervisor Warren T. Branson of Carmel Valley will serve as Master of Ceremonies for the big event.

Bruce McClain, county road commissioner, Dr. Edward P. Marcucci, chairman of the county planning commission, Walter Mansfield, county administrator; Earl B. Smith, park director; many other county officials including all members of the planning commission.

The dedication ceremonies will be held at the clearing about 2-1/2 miles up Laureles Grade from Carmel Valley Road.

Members of the various women's organizations in Carmel Valley have been invited to serve as hostesses at both the dedication and the barbecue which follows at the Trail & Saddle Club.

Congressman Talcott will be unable to attend the celebration, but expects to be in the Valley later in the day. He advised Dr. Marcucci that he regretted missing the ceremonies, but congratulated the Valley on its dedication to conservation of its scenic beauty.

NEXT TIME, SWING UP TO 'HEAVEN ON A HILLTOP'

Many times, no doubt, as you have driven along the Valley Road, you've noticed the handsome, gold-lettered signs at the entrance to Del Mesa Carmel.

But have you ever taken just a few minutes to breeze up the lovely, lamp-lined road of lofty pines to see for yourself why this place is regarded as America's most beautiful adult community?

If you haven't, then you have a delightful surprise ahead. Swing up next time and see this "Heaven on a hilltop." High above the sunny Carmel Valley, this select community is a graceful grouping of attractive, modern condominium homes. The bright gardened grounds are meticulously maintained and add a cheerful note to the handsome central buildings and surrounding homes.

You'll enjoy seeing the elegant clubhouse with its picturesque dining room, game rooms and hobby workshop. Other features are the big, all-year indoor pool, fine putting and bowling greens.

While you're there, stop by the office and you'll be given, with no obligation whatsoever, a colorful brochure telling all about this award-winning "neighborhood". It contains much information you'll be interested in having about this distinguished Carmel Valley highlight. For here is something really worthwhile to tell your visitor-friends about. And who knows, one day you may be living the great life up here yourself.

Village club house burns down

Two small fires occurred in the Valley during the past week. The first one, last Wednesday, was around 7:40 p.m. A children's clubhouse, on the River bottom near Lazy Oaks in a public park area, caught fire. It was quickly extinguished, with only slight damage to surrounding shrubs and trees. The clubhouse was a complete loss, and the cause is under investigation. "It won't take them long to rebuild it," Chief Chip Collins said. "They'll find some scrap-lumber. . ."

At 8:13 p.m. on Friday, an emergency call came in from Norman Skadon, 103 Ford Road. Two trucks and 12 men responded to the call. The flames were caused from burning plastic in the fireplace, which made an excessively-hot fire. The packing around the fireplace was supposedly fire-proof, but heat set the roof-beams to smouldering. Firemen removed the inner flashing from around the vent and extinguished the fire. There was no real damage, and water was kept in the fireplace. "It might cost $15 to replace the insulation," the Chief said.

On Friday at 8:25 p.m., the emergency crew was called to Dormody's San Clemente in Robinson's Canyon. TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association extends its heartiest congratulations to all whose efforts climax in the dedication, on October 1st, of Laureles Grade as a scenic road.

Even though the designation is well deserved, it could never have been achieved without the persistency and involvement of dedicated people.

Now that one of the gateways to the Carmel Valley has been preserved, our own efforts to protect the area that the gateway leads to must not be diminished.

Again our warmest appreciation to the supervisors, commissioners and to the people who make this dedication possible.

Sincerely,
ROY KAMINSKE
President, CVPOA

To the Editor:

I wish to thank all the people who called or came by to express their enthusiasm for the letter written to the Editor in last week's Outlook. It is most gratifying to me but in reality such opinions should be directed to Mr. Robert Bolman personally who can be reached by addressing mail to Post Office Box 345, Pebble Beach, Calif. 95953.

He is, after all, the judge, whereas I am only pleading our case. If enough Villagers were to write him or enclose the Outlook letter, he could not be other than impressed that so many of us cared that much about the appearance and the purpose of such a project. It could make him the "Hero of the Century" as far as Carmel Valley Village is concerned, if he were instrumental in bringing the first park to the area as well as a fine place to shop and a landmark to attract tourists to our sunny midst in an otherwise fog flown Peninsula.

LAURELES GRADE Scenic Road Dedication Ceremonies -

Dear Sir:

I hope that you will find space in your paper to commend Assemblyman Robert Wood for his outstanding service, not only to his constituents in Monterey County but to all residents of Monterey Bay and other parts of the State and Nation for his role in the ultimate passage of Senate Bill 57. This bill, co-authored by Senator Grunsky of Watsonville, prevents the drilling for purposes of extracting or exploring for oil within Monterey Bay and adjacent coastal waters. It passed both houses of the legislature without opposition.

When Assemblyman Wood learned that due to opposition from members of the Governor's Cabinet that there was a very strong chance that this bill would not be signed into law, he immediately went on the air and alerted the entire Monterey Bay Area of this dire possibility in time for the people to react and allow their thoughts to be known to the Governor. I am confident that had Bob Wood not reacted in such a responsible manner that this much needed law would not have been passed. For his efforts he has earned the admiration of many new friends on the Santa Cruz side of Monterey Bay. In my opinion he displayed a high order of integrity in carrying out his campaign pledges which I followed very closely in his campaign against my friend Fred Farr. Although I am a Democrat it gives me a great deal of pleasure to give credit where credit is due. Where there is a threat to the quality of our environment people of all political persuasions must join together. In such matters we can no longer afford the luxury of partisanship and political game playing of any kind.

Assemblyman Wood deserves a medal. I hope that someone from your area finds time to give him one.

Sincerely,
LOUIS B. MUHLY

THE TOWN CRIER

BONNIE WELLER

Well, from what I saw on Saturday morning, the Flea Market at the Fire House was a huge success. Swarms of people were there at 10 o'clock, and both sides of the street were lined with cars. The community certainly responded to requests for donations. Clothes hung on long racks and were piled high on several tables. Just about everything else could be found, also. I bought five hardback books, for a quarter each--one of which is a First Edition of "Vanity Fair". The bake table was great! I came home with some of Mrs. Stan Roberts' Purple Leaf Plum Jam from "Roberts' Roost." Yummy on English muffins. I don't know who made the delicious pound cake, but my family polished it off in one day--plus an apple pie like Mother used to bake. Raz Belleci came by the book tables, saying, "It took us two years to save up that many books." Rosemary Roberts, chairman of the Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary--which sponsored the event, said there were people at the Fire House as early as 8:30 Saturday morning. But the women held to their opening time of 10:00, before accepting money for merchandise. Mrs. June Van Hagen, assistant chairman, reports that the benefit was a great success. When I went to the Fire-House on Monday morning, the Salvation Army truck was there, picking up the left-over merchandise. (And I found out that Mrs. Don Laird baked the pound cake.)

Last Thursday, a large United Grocer truck came around the curve near the OUTLOOK office and its brakes went out. All eight wheels on the single-trailer truck locked, throwing the truck across Carmel Valley Road--narrowly missing a big oak tree. With supreme effort, the driver managed to get the truck back on the right side and off the highway. "It took everything the truck had to get it across," he told the staff, when he came in to use the phone. The driver had a 3-1/2 hour wait, while help came from Richmond. So, he walked around our quaint village--and said he wanted to come back.

A couple of weeks back, I promised a story on Carmel Valley Inn. The feature's written and will appear next week for sure. . . Also one on the Bavarian Mushroom Farm, with pictures of the different stages of growth.

The other day, the women on our staff walked over to the MAD HATTER for lunch. And we enjoyed it very much. Dara and Roberta had Coo-Coo Burgers, and I had a tuna-tomato-avocado sandwich. We brought back Joannie's creamy cheese-cake and French apple pie, to have with coffee later. While we were there, I suggested to Joannie that she might be interested in a new book - the story of "Alice in Wonderland," illustrated and signed by Salvador Dali. And the book sells for only $375 a copy. (A limited edition, of course.) "What shall I do?" Joannie asked. "Buy a copy for each table?" Mrs. Smith at the bookstore said someone brought in a copy of "Little Red Riding Hood", written in French and illustrated by Picasso, which sold for $600 a copy. (The Flea Market's more my speed.)

Carmel High's football team played their second game of the season on Saturday. Unfortunately, they lost 14-6 to Alisal. The players were disappointed, but are now more determined than ever to win that next game.

In celebration of George Smith's obvious happiness, Roy Kaminske brought in a bag of beautiful apples for the staff. About the reason for George's walking on air, you'll have to wait a week or so . . .

The John Harrisons of Carmel Valley Inn were delightfully surprised on Monday by the sudden appearance of old, old friends from West Vancouver, B.C. Baird and Evelyn Curry came to California for his uncle's 60th Wedding Anniversary in Paso Robles. His uncle, George White, is 93--and his wife is 92. The last time John Harrison and Baird Curry saw each other was two years ago at a dinner for John at one of Vancouver's exclusive clubs.

Good news to southbound travelers! The first stage of construction on the 101 freeway between King City and San Lucas has opened to 101 traffic. This will place 101 traffic entirely on the newly-constructed roadway; however, detours will be in effect just south of the First Street Interchange, north of the new Wild Horse Road Interchange, and at the southerly end of the project.

Carmelo 4-H Club sign-up

Thursday night at Tularcitos

The final and official signup for this year for the Carmelo 4-H club will be held at the Tularcitos School at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday. At least one parent must also attend this meeting in order to join or re-enroll.

Because of the growing number of children interested in joining the 4-H and the lack of leaders, parental support and backing will be a necessity.

"There are a number of exciting projects available in the 4-H program such as Veterinary Science, Photography, Automotive, Forestry, Wildlife, Electricity and Woodworking that will be unavailable unless leaders can be found. We now can offer cooking, sewing, horse, sheep, swine, vegetable gardening, Girls beginning 4-H and we would like to especially invite new members into the guide dog project and beginning 4-H for 9 to 10 year old boys," said Mrs. Bob Wilson.

Rent a UCB safe deposit box now and get this keepsake free.

Why risk losing legal documents and irreplaceable heirlooms by not having a safe deposit box? Each year, thousands of Californians lose valuable items that could have been protected for less than 2¢ a day. Yes, that's all it costs for the security and peace of mind of a fireproof, burglarproof safe deposit box at United California Bank.

If you've told yourself you'd get around to renting one, and never did, here's the opportunity to take that wise step—plus an added incentive. With the rental of a UCB safe deposit box of any size, we're offering free Old Monterey Bicentennial Medallions.

These commemorative pieces are available in lustrous bronze for lasting beauty. They're a treasure that might be the first keepsake you want to put in safe deposit. But hurry, this special offer expires December 31, 1969.

Intimate 'firefight' in this battle between the sexes

It's wild, man, wild. That's about the least -- and maybe the most -- that can be said about "The Owl and the Pussycat". It opened last week at the Circle Theatre in Carmel, its first attraction of the fall season. And it is quite an attraction. Pit an intellectual against a sex-bomb in rather unusual and intimate circumstances, and you have the basis for theatrical fireworks. Especially when the dialogue is written by a clever playwright such as Bill Manhoff. He gets it off the ground without a moment's notice. Joyce Malikoff (Doris) barges into the San Francisco loft apartment of Paul Elliott (F. Sherman). Frustrated sexually as well as intellectually, he has seen fit to spy her out in a neighboring apartment, turn her in for practicing her art (sex) and get her thrown out by the manager. She isn't going to take it lying down; or is she? In a crackling first act, Doris tears into him with a splendid string of expletives, and he fights back with all his intellectual muscle. As might be expected, they wind up by going to bed together. This only magnifies the distance between them. He refuses to admit he has been had by sex; she refuses to permit him to refuse. In the end, after a farcical joint suicide plot, they finally conclude that their hang-up is refusing to admit what they really are. And so, they live happily ever after. They do? They are the only characters in this stormy, sexy comedy. It is all very funny, and the language is not only superbly intricate and clever but generously colorful. Profanity might better describe it, but no one can say it doesn't fit the action. Joyce Malikoff is a wonderful pussycat. She can purr and she can bite. She can project a hardened prostitute and then switch innocently to a cuddly kitten. Paul Elliott, frustrated as most intellectuals are nowadays, proves a capable foil. It isn't easy to portray a love-hate relationship as complex as this one. Both received warm plaudits from a large opening night audience. Roy Baxter directed. Very well, one might add. GMD

Sheriff speaks up for scouting

In a meeting before a Scout committee, Sheriff Jack Davenport told of his experience with boys, "Our job is law enforcement. Some times we have to bring in boys who are in trouble. Most boys are basically good boys, but with too much time on their hands, boys can pick up the wrong kind of associates. "Our experience is that we have almost no problems from boys that are active in the Boy Scouts. These boys are under the guidance of a scout master, who takes an interest in their affairs and teaches the boys the importance of doing worthwhile projects. "I wish all parents would go to school night for scouting on Wednesday evening, October first at your son's school. See what the scouts do."

Malia Elliot auditions in Los Angeles

Malia Elliot, the delightful star of the White Oaks production of "The Fantasticks" has been offered a re-tainer by the recording company which auditioned her in Los Angeles, pending her return from the starring role of Sheila in the Hawaiian production of HAIR. Malia plans to return to Los Angeles in January to do an album of folk music to be called "Malia Sings". Hopefully, she will follow in the footsteps of Joan Baez and Judy Collins.

John Harrison, manager of Carmel Valley Inn, arranged for Malia's recording. The company does movie and television commercials, etc. Before moving to the Monterey Peninsula in 1958, Mr. Harrison was active in the theater in Vancouver, B.C. He has been seen as the mayor in "Bye Bye Birdie" at The Studio Theatre in Carmel, and is now associated with White Oaks.

Sheila Jo White, lovely singer and pianist, is now singing at The Elegant Rooster, a restaurant in Monterey which overlooks Lake El Estero. In the summer, she was musical director of White Oaks. In the winter, she has sung for the Norman Luboff Choir.

Another fine performance by Sam and Edie Karas

If you wonder why our foreign relations are frequently mystifying, and our image abroad far less than perfect, you might well see Woody Allen's comedy, "Don't Drink the Water", which opened last week at the Studio Theatre in Carmel.

This of course is a caricature, and a very funny one indeed, but unfortunately it is based on altogether too much of the truth.

Sam and Edie Karas are magnificent as the American tourists, Walter and Marion Hollander, who rather innocently find that life behind the Iron Curtain is somewhat different than life back in New Jersey.

When they are picked up as 'spies', and find sanctuary in the American Embassy in a place like Lower Solbovia, they quickly find that the American Embassy not only doesn't resolve their problem, but somehow manages to amplify it.

Sam Karas can deliver the Woody Allen dialogue with just the right touch of sophisticated incongruity. He has plenty of it.

Another bright light in the Studio's new play is Diane Higgins, a newcomer to the stage here. She is very pretty and relaxed and plays the Hollander's daughter beautifully. Her highly improbably romance with Axel Magee, the American ambassador's bumbling son, played by Walter Pezet, provides her with a role that should lead to a great many more.

Ed Shinbrot doubled as the ambassador and the Sultan of Bashir. He has too little time on the stage, actually, since he has that stage aplomb that superbly reaches across the footlights.

Paul M. Boczkowski, another newcomer, almost seems to be type-cast for the role of Krojack, the Communist super-policeman. He looks and acts the part with fearsome reality.

Peter Hanson as Kilroy, the beleaguered diplomatic aide; Dennis Weaver as the chef, equally beleaguered; Clifford Anderson as Father Drobney, the eccentric priest who has spent 6 years too many as a fugitive from Communist brotherhood, each make their own unique contributions to this hilarious comedy.

Bill Asp directed, and keeps the action moving at a rapid clip. Costumes by Judy Evans, and sets and lighting by Bob Evans, Jr., were excellent.

The story itself isn't as much as the lines and the situations. But you'll have to see it for yourself to find the answers to the questions. Do the tourists ever make it home? Does the boy get the girl?

Peter Shaw talks to Kiwanians

Activities of the Fellowship for Christian Athletes was the subject of Peter Shaw's talk at the last meeting of the Kiwanis Club. A senior at Carmel High School, Peter was sponsored by the Kiwanis Clubs of Carmel and Carmel Valley to attend one of the organization's conferences. Two meetings for Christian Athletes are held annually on the West Coast, largely sponsored by Kiwanis Clubs. One is held at California Western College in San Diego and one at Southern Oregon College. With approximately 400 other high school athletes, Pete was at Southern Oregon College.

The boys who are chosen to attend must be athletes, either sophomores or juniors. One of the purposes is that they will return to school and further the aims of the organization. Working with various churches, the program is non-denominational. Leaders at the conferences are college and professional athletes as well as coaches and others interested in sports and athletics. Their program provides study and contemplation of Christianity, in addition to competition in sports.

Pete showed a film and told of his own personal experiences at the conference in Oregon.

BY MRS. B.C. FORRESTER

Way back in history champagne became the most favored light wine. In 1152, the Count of Champagne found that the white grapes of his countship in northern France produced a delicately flavoured wine. He cultivated these grapes, improved the process of fermenting them, until he was making the finest wine in France.

In later years many ecclesiastical countships were added to the countship of Champagne until it became the province we know today by that name, and still the best wines come from that area.

The Counts of Champagne did more than develop a wine, however. They were descendants of Odo I of Blois, and sent many of their sons to the Crusades. They gave a king to Jerusalem in that era, were Kings of Navaare, and even gave a king to France, namely Louis X in 1314.

In the 12th and 13th centuries Champagne was famous for its Fairs. Lying as it does at the crossroads from Flanders, Germany, Italy and Provence, it formed a convenient meeting place for traders from many nations. Six Fairs were held annually, each lasting 49 days, in six different towns of Champagne. Here linen, furs, spices, dyes, wool, alum, etc., were brought, and traded or sold. Each fair opened with a week devoted to receiving merchandise; the next four weeks one bartered and bought and sold. The last two weeks were given to settling accounts. Because of this last practice, the Fairs became regular banking centers and clearing houses for traders from all over the world, and also became places where ordinary business men and others could transact business.

And now another kind of a "fair" has been devised by the Carmel Valley Woman's Club, which they have dubbed the "Champagne Auction." The affair is to be held from seven to nine o'clock on the evening of September 26, at the Rancho Del Monte. Tickets are $3.50 each and may be obtained from any club member. This entitles one to the buffet goodies and to Champagne. The auction will commence at 8:00 p.m. and many are the White Elephants going under the hammer, from festive bonnets to airway flights. It was planned for fun, come and get it.

I give you here some of the recipes used by those making savory dishes for the "Champagne Auction".

Jane Van Hagen, (Mrs. Kenneth) is providing Cream Puffs! Every woman loves them, but if you are making them and want to keep that figure "girl watchers watch" you can just as well fill them with crab meat or shrimp and serve them as hors d'oeuvres:

CREAM PUFFS A LA JANE
1 cup water 1 cup regular flour
1 cube butter 4 eggs
½ tsp salt

Bring water to boil, add cube of butter, Continue to boil and add flour sifted with salt. Stir until mix leaves sides of pot. Remove from heat. COOL FOR 10 MINUTES. Add 4 eggs, 1 at a time, mixing with fork until smooth. Heat oven to 375 deg. Drop mixture by spoonful on to cookie sheet (greased) and bake at 375 deg. for 25 min.

If you don't think they are good, buy some at the Champagne Auction — you will be baking them next week.

"Mike" Cecka (Mrs. J.T.) made those delicious "Cheese Balls" at the Champagne Auction, and this is the recipe she used:

CHEESE BALLS
8 oz. Sharp Cheddar Cheese, grated
11" Blue Cheese, crumbled.
8" Cream Cheese.

Let cheese come to room temperature, then blend. Add 1 tsp Worcestershire sauce, 2 tsp grated onion. While at room temperature shape into balls or logs, and roll in grated or pounded nuts, minced parsley, or paprika.

Let them stand in refrigerator for at least 24 hours to age before using.

Note: tsp in above recipe means teaspoon measurement.

If you taste the following you will realize hot dogs are quite at home in Canton.

1 lb. frankfurters 2 tbsp cornstarch
2 tbsp veg. oil 1 can pineapple chunks (1 lb. 4 oz. can)
1 tbsp soy sauce 1½ tsp vinegar
1 tsp powdered ginger ½ tsp garlic salt
½ tsp MSG ½ cup water

Brown frankfurters in oil. Drain juice from pineapple, add to juice water, vinegar, and soy sauce. Stir in dry ingredients, i.e. ginger, cornstarch, garlic salt and MSG, stirring until free of lumps. Pour mixture over franks. Simmer until thick and clear. Lastly add pineapple chunks.

This same recipe can be used for a casserole dish by adding 1 cup sliced celery, 1 sliced or diced green pepper, ¼ cup slivered almonds toasted. Pour over cooked rice in casserole and serve.

UNDER THE OAKS & AMONG THE CACTI

By Mildred Hattan

"PATIO PETES" have returned and are taking the Valley by storm. The dapper little dolls, as appealing as they are useful, were first designed and sold two years ago at the Community Chapel Bazaar. Mrs. Thomas McKiernon and her committee for the gift booth at this year's November 8th "Holiday Bazaar" dusted off the old pattern and Patio Petes are once again rolling off the assembly line. Made of raffia and dressed in cunning scarecrow attire, they were originally designed to hang on the patio or in the garden where they willingly give up strands of raffia should a shrub or vine need a tying support. They are really so cute that they are also purchased for Halloween decor (better order yours now) and a favorite youngster of ours who resides in the Lower Valley is the envy of the Sand Box Set because Patio Petes were used to set the theme for his bedroom decor.

Meeting each Monday morning at the Buena Vista home of Marjorie to construct and dress the gift dolls have been Mmes. Stella Miller, Mable Love, Amy Mylar, Irma Bolgard, Jean Danielson, Helen Fitch, Vera Stokes and Miss Esther Trevenio. Last week they drove to the San Benacio Canyon home of Mrs. Leon Amyx to spend the day dressing Petes in their coverall garb. In addition to those already mentioned the work party was made up of Mmes. Louella Ollason, Harriet Busick and Carol Boudoin. Better reserve yours now by phoning 372-3568.

THE COMMUNICATION SATELLITE CORP Wives are spending a pleasant afternoon together each month when they meet for luncheon and bridge. Mrs. George Ford and Mrs. Robert French selected Rancho Del Monte last week where in addition to luncheon and cards some of the ladies enjoyed the pool. Mrs. Donald McKenzie won high in bridge. A special guest was Mrs. French's mother-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth French, who is a Valley guest from Miami, Florida. Consat wives attending were Mmes. Stan Nubin, Larry Baley, James Clark, Jack Inman, John Scroggs, Melvin Stauffer, Joseph Tanner, Donald Tucker and J.R. Fredricks.

A GROUP OF VALLEY-ITES have taken to the lanes again, BOWLING LANES, that is. Lovers of the sport who organized last year for exercise and fun have re-organized this fall and call themselves, "The Valley Varmitz". (That's right, Varmitz with a "Z!") Scoring strikes and spares last week were Jerry and Chick Clark, Kay and Neil Sparks, Susie and Vic Harber, Barbara and Dave Allard, Gail and Dale Buche, Anna and Gordon Harlander, Donna and Jon Storm, Ellie and Dick Hansen, Lyde and Lee Mink, Dorothy and Mike Meheen, JoAnn and Bud Platter, Liz and Daryl Jewett, Kathy and Bruce Churchill.

ADVENTURES OF THE CREW on the cruise of a 42' sloop, "Serendipity" will give cause for some pleasant recollecting when the rains begin this winter and they are snug before a crackling fireplace. Elizabeth and Dave Hoisington set sail in their craft accompanied by June and Walt Mauzey with their children Cynthia and Pete, of Ford Road, Fred Pastorius of Ridgeway Rd. and Bill Thomas of Monterey. Serendipity, so christened because "once you set sail you never know what you are going to find," lived up to her name and 'found' on the first night a whale of a storm, the very vengeance of the sea. Elizabeth and Dave who had taken Captain Boshart's navigation course were able, despite loss of instruments to get her safely back on course (although it took a whole day) and literally "surfed" into Santa Barbara drawn by the Santa Barbara radio station signal picked up on their tiny transistor radio.

Housewives who know that cooking for eight is an effort under the best of conditions will surely sympathize with Elizabeth who with menus made up for breakfast lunch and dinner described her galley experiences as "cook in motion!" They enjoyed the antics of the friendly porpoises who accompanied them and were awed by the beauty of their water ballet performed at night when they took on a greenish-blue iridescence.

Their return trip was made through dense fog on water still as a mill pond. Suddenly that grey curtain parted and there before them were the lights of Pacific Grove. Astronauts' splashdowns have nothing on the sailors from El Camminito whose docking was ONE MINUTE OFF estimated time of arrival!

JULIEN CAHEEN, chairman of the Counsel on Americanism for the American Legion and the Veteran's of Foreign War called last week with an incredible story. At the National Conventions of the American Legion and the VFW the motion picture "Che" was condemned. The film billed as the "great story of our century showing the true story of Che Guevara", described at the convention as Fidel Castro's "hatchet man." Mr. Caheen, a dedicated patriot, who admits to staunchly serving Americanism for 60 years contacted Kirk Erskine, peninsula theater owner, explained the condemnation and received his complete cooperation and assurance that the film would not be shown here. Imagine his complete surprise when Cmdr. E.A. "Pat" O'Malley (Lt. Col. USA Ret.) commander of the Carmel American Legion Post 512 learned that the picture was scheduled to be shown at Fort Ord during the week of Sept. 21-27. Numerous calls have been made to the Post commander and the case will be presented next Sunday at the American Legion district meeting in Santa Cruz by Mr. Caheen who will be accompanied by H.H. Thomsen, a 5-star general, and a committee made up of other officers concerned with this classic bit of irony.

THE OPENING on Saturday of a gift shop is only one of a series of exciting events in the lives of Charee and Dave Trevas, owners, and Charee's parents, Helen and Jim Fitch who were on hand to greet guests. Jim Fitch is the "Herald"; the retired army officer has an alphabetical file containing 100,000 names. His library was there on Saturday with names for which Jim has traced the first granting of their personal coat-of-arms. The interior of the shop is predominately gold and black decor. The exterior is adorned with coats of arms belonging to artists Al Parker and Eugene Baker; cartoonists Feg Murray and Fred Toole, the Fitches and the Martins (This was Helen's maiden name).

Eugene Baker and Jim have submitted through Fred Toole, representative of Hall Publishers, a pictorial column dealing with heraldry done in such an informative manner that it takes it out of the comic strip category and puts it into a feature item. Also in for publication is a feature article co-authored by Al Parker and Jim dealing with the use of Jazz in the graphic arts. This will appear in the magazine, Limbo.

IF YOU FIND YOURSELF at a meeting where the discussion runs to Chocolate Gouramis, Angels, Honey Dwarfs, Cardinal Tetras, Betta Splendens and the like, you have undoubtedly discovered the Monterey Peninsula Aquarium Society which meets on the fourth Tuesday of each month at 8:00 p.m. on the corner of Lighthouse and Dickman Streets in Monterey. The New Monterey Neighborhood Center. There are divisions for both Intermediate and Junior members, a fascinating way to learn the proper techniques in rearing and exhibiting fresh water and tropical fishes.

President of the M.P.A.S. is Robert Lee. Other officers include Joe Augusta, vice president; Sherwood Langdoc, 2nd vice president; Patricia Walters, secretary; Barbara Augusta, corresponding secretary; Ann Johnson, treasurer; and Intermediate and Junior representative, Scott Yee. Members of the board of directors are Hank Hoeshier, Mary Butler and Hazel Tripp. Activities during the summer included a trip to the Steinhart Aquarium in San Francisco; a picnic at Paraiso Park, and a club exhibit at the Monterey County Fair. During August there was an Open Show for Aquarists held at Cypress Motors. Among the award winners were Valley residents Kathy Watson and Cara Weston. Bill Cooke, a Valley-ite and student at York School for Boys, was instrumental in setting up the successful showing.

The Club sponsored a Home Show for members only this week and members will be taking part in the first Annual Open Fish Show of the Salinas Valley Aquarium Society October 4 and 5. Visitors are always welcome to attend the monthly meetings which feature speakers, displays, demonstrations and fish competition.

"AN OLD OAK LEAF CLUSTER" to the Carmel Valley Lionettes, whose project, "Operation Birthdays" continues to bring so much pleasure to patients who otherwise would not be remembered on birthdays and special holidays. Last week, Mrs. John Koon, current chairman of the project, instigated five years ago at the Carmel Convalescent Hospital, delivered a gift and birthday cake to Serda Serapio who was born in September of 1870. The 79-years-young patient is one of six who do not have families and have been adopted by the Valley Club.

REHABILITATING an otter with criminal tendencies is the monumental task undertaken by Mona and Owen Patrick of the Carmel Rancho Pet Shop. "Squeak Toy", who lives in their Lower Valley home, was well on his way to being independently wealthy when he learned a very sad, but very valuable (even for an otter) lesson.... "Put your money in the bank and NOT in your mattress." Cursed with an insatiable curiosity and finding holes of any size worrisome things that demand filling were the combined factors which turned the hero of our story toward a life of crime. On one of his nocturnal explorations of the Patrick home he discovered Owen's pocket change on the night stand. Wheels churned in that small furry head as he saw the perfect opportunity to begin saving for his old age.

The shiny coins pilfered nightly (for which Mona took the blame) were placed in a hole in a mattress (made originally by the little thief and enlarged as his cache grew). GREED has been the undoing of many a human being and otter alike and by noting the stuffing which had been removed to make

Mrs. Vince O'Neill is president of the group. Hospitality chairman, Mrs. Leon Obenhouse, and her committee members had prepared delicious refreshments for the ladies. Mrs. Chaney had selected mums and fall decor for her attractive tea table. The Chaney's moved to the Valley in July having previously been stationed at Camp Pendleton. They have two sons, Steven, a freshman at Carmel High School and Jim who is enrolled at Carmel Middle School.

IT WAS A REGULAR mutual admiration society last week with an exchange of felicitations and greeting cards between Mrs. R.E. (Holly) Cayce and John Koon who share the same birthdate. Everything donated for the auction is new. This year, the offerings will include a color TV, a horse, a typewriter, a photograph by Ansel Adams, a power lawn mower, fertilizer and sand--to mention a few.

The BID-A-LONG will be held on Friday, October 3, from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. at the OUTRIGGER, Cannery Row. Champagne and hors d'oeuvres will be served. Ticket donations are $5.00. Advance reservations and catalogs of items to be auctioned can be obtained by calling 659-4093 or 659-2731.

What's doing?

I'd like to pass on this reminder about the most relaxed, comfortable way you can travel these days — Fly Pacific Telephone Lines with a long distance call. In seconds you can be visiting friends or family. And the cost is low. After six p.m. weekdays or all weekend long, it costs 85¢ or less for three minutes, station-to-station, plus tax—anywhere in California. Now where can you beat a round trip travel offer like that?

If you're like a lot of people, you scribble phone numbers you want to remember on everything imaginable... matchbooks, scraps of paper and odds and ends of all sorts. So here's a suggestion that will help you keep those numbers organized. Let us give you one of our Personal Numbers Booklets. It has plenty of spaces for names, addresses, and telephone numbers; and it's a handy size for slipping under the phone. Just call your Business Office and we'll be happy to send you one—or more if you need them.

Some early day handset telephone users likely found themselves developing some unusual arm muscle. One 19th century handset—a separate transmitter and receiver attached to thick steel—weighed in at 1 pound 10 ounces. The weight of most modern handsets: a mere 10 ounces.

BOB WOOD REPORTS.

A REGULAR COLUMN BY BOB WOOD,
ASSEMBLYMAN - 34TH DISTRICT

Last week I received a letter from the California County Supervisors Association inviting me to be a participant in a tax reform open forum meeting to be held during their annual convention at Squaw Valley this next month. As a State Assemblyman I have no real legal business attending this meeting but I was fortunate last year to have been elected Chairman of the Central Coast Regional Supervisors Association which includes our nine central coast counties. Since no Chairman will be elected until their annual meeting in October, I guess I am still unofficially (in name only) regional chairman.

After thinking it over I decided to accept the invitation. After all, the Governor's office, our own State Assembly and the State Senate were unable to come up with a tax reform plan acceptable to a majority of the legislators of both political parties; maybe the Supervisors Association can come up with a plan that will be acceptable to the entire State legislature and the people. I think I can do our district possibly more good by listening instead of talking at this meeting. And, those of you who know me, also know that in my case this is pretty hard to do. Speaking out of turn and speaking often are two of my weak points. My wife, Betsy, probably knows several more which I won't discuss at this time.

I wish the majority of our State legislators had been former city councilmen or county supervisors. The experience of dealing with taxpayers and people on the grass roots level is invaluable when it comes time to serve on a State or Federal level. Many of our State legislators have come to the Assembly and Senate through this route although I understand only five of the present members of the lower house, or Assembly, were formerly County Supervisors.

When the State administration presented a suggested tax reform program to the legislature last April it involved a massive shift in taxes totalling nearly two billion dollars. This recommended shift being principally from property taxes to some form of increase in sales tax and a possible small increase in income taxes. When we stop and realize that our entire budget for the State is only 6.2 billion, you can understand why we can't afford to make mistakes but must come back to you, the people, with the best possible tax reform program.

We've all heard the old saying "it is an ill wind that blows no good". Maybe it is a good thing we didn't come up with a final State tax reform plan because now we read where Federal tax reforms are being considered and, although we will not know the full impact of the Federal plan until the adjournment of Congress later in the year, if they adopt any program it is bound to affect our approach to the same

Variance and use permits OK'd

A variance and two use permits were recommended for approval at Friday's meeting of the Upper Valley Advisory Committee.

Doyt Early, chairman, said that a front yard setback variance for Dennis Powell of Boronda Road was approved.

Also two use permits requested by Jesse and Blanche Lopez, who will open a restaurant on Carmel Valley Road at Pilot Road, were recommended for approval. One was a sign, and the other a beer and wine on-sale permit.

State driver improvement course for older drivers

A series of four driver improvement classes will be held at the Monterey Public Library, Pacific & Madison, beginning Tuesday, Oct. 7 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. The remaining three sessions will be Oct. 10, 14, and 17.

The National Safety Council has prepared this eight-hour course designed expressly for drivers over 55 years of age. Completion of the eight hours qualifies the student for a certificate, which is recognized by some insurance carriers in their rates for auto insurance.

Information from the California Vehicle Code is also an important part of the course, together with a series of 8 color films.

Although the instructors serve on a volunteer basis, there is a fee for the "Student Workbook". Members of the National Retired Teachers Association or American Association of Retired Persons pay $1.00, since this course is co-sponsored by these organizations. Any one over 55 years of age is welcome to enroll, but non-members of either organization pay $4.00.

Additional information is available from the instructors, Mr. and Mrs. A. Nicholson, by calling 659-2172.

Advertising held essential PG&E aid

Advertising is the efficient means for communicating sales promotion, customer service and institutional messages to a mass audience, the advertising manager of Pacific Gas and Electric Company testified today before the California Public Utilities Commission.

"Advertising enhances efficiency in the company's operations. This benefits the ratepayers because increased efficiency improves customer service and holds down rates," he declared.

The witness was A. James McCollum, manager of PG&E's advertising and publicity department, supporting the company's pending application for a gas rate increase.

McCollum declared that advertising in newspapers, radio-TV, magazines and other media is an essential part of the operating expenses of the PG&E gas department.

He described three categories of advertising used by the gas department as follows: (1) appliance advertising to support the sales promotion program which is designed to increase load on customer lines and thus reduce unit costs of service; (2) customer service advertising, designed to instruct customers in gas appliance safety standards, in how and when to relight furnace pilots and how to increase household heating efficiency, and (3) institutional advertising, designed to advance public understanding of the company's policies, practices, projects and worthiness as a business enterprise.

problem on the State level.

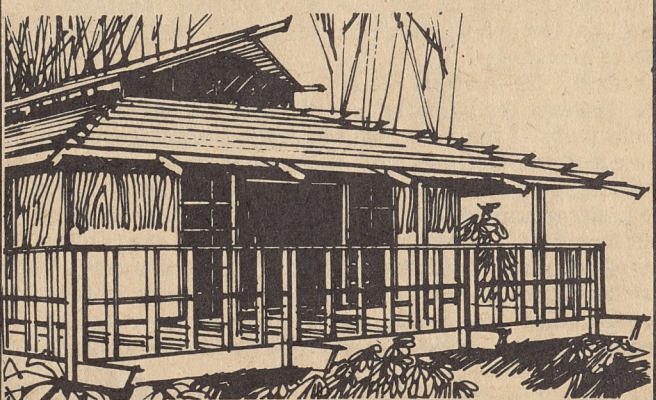

Enough for now.....

BOB WOOD

P.S. I still think the Governor should call a special session to work on tax reform only, but, after all, I am the low man (in seniority) on the totem pole. I doubt if our Governor is really too interested in how I feel on the subject -- he has far more important things to worry about than the opinions of a freshman Assemblyman (and rightfully so).

THERE IS A REASON FOR DISENCHANTMENT IN OUR LAND

Last week, we brought you a feature about John M. Cartwright, retired attorney and author of a series of books on real estate law. Mr. Cartwright has some profound insights why the youth of today protest against bureaucratic government. It is rare for one of his generation to identify with the plight of youth. Cartwright's dialogue is dynamic.

-BWW

When you were here you asked me if I would jot down a few of the ideas we discussed. I have taken the time to do this for you.

We see in America today a deep unrest among the people. It manifests itself on one hand in an apprehensive point of view, on the other, violence, arson and murder. And it affects all classes.

Actually, this unrest is of a world order. But I think that whatever the initiating specific causes might be in different parts of the world, the efficient or inducing cause of present dissatisfactions may be found in the accumulating pressures of government mandates unwisely imposed upon the people governed. These may flow from nothing less than bad forms of government, or they may be the result of merely poor administrative policies. On the other hand they may represent ill-conceived attempts to engraft upon established and accepted forms of government an ideology foreign to deep seated cultures tied to historical precedent.

However, I can only comment upon what is happening here in the United States. The unrest today in this country, particularly among the young people, springs, I think, out of the imperceptible and constantly mounting and accumulating pressures of the last few decades brought about by the direct intervention of government in the minutiae of living. They have weighed heavily upon all of the people. The younger generations have inherited the impact of these pressures and cannot escape from it. These young people, I cannot help but believe, must experience a cramped kind of freedom in a country of great potential and immense natural wealth that finds it so necessary to restrict the actions of its people to conform to government bureau directives, rather than to general rules of conduct.

These pressures, these directives, are generated by the exercise of an alarming concentration of the police power in the hands of government bureaus. And when these bureaus continue to enforce rules and regulations cut to fit those social concepts that more than half of the people of the Nation are now convinced are undemocratic and unjust, pressures reach beyond what people, and particularly the young people of the country, are willing to endure. Unrest and dissatisfaction breaks into open revolt and violence.

Even in an area of justified regulation, bureaucratic pressures too often impose arbitrary and unnecessary restraints to effect some so-called "public benefit, while in fact depriving every individual the directive reaches of most of the benefit and enjoyment of the regulated activity. The staggering growth of the exercise of the police power of the state in the last few decades, and the attitude of the Supreme Court of the United States in recent years is altogether alarming. The effect has been to introduce, as acceptable to our theory of government, juristic doctrine calculated to erode away a hardy and vigorous concept of freedom, and substitute in its place a sickly, characterless and spineless bureaucratic anomaly.

The strength and vitality of American civilization depends upon a rugged and healthy individualism, and a sound doctrine of private property. The encroachment of government bureaus today upon the area of private responsibility is destroying many sterling qualities of American life.

The number of government bureaus, federal, state, county and municipal is fantastic. The rules and regulations promulgated by these bureaus have the force and effect of law, yet not one of them has come out of a legislative law-making body, the members of which are elected by the people as their representatives to enact the laws of the land.

The individual American today more than ever before must feel the pressure of this inordinate weight of administrative regulation. He cannot help but wonder what the quality of this liberty, this freedom he has, really is, and how bona fide it in fact is, when practically everything worth while he undertakes must first have the approval of some government bureau, over the signature of some bureaucrat reading from a book of rules and regulations he himself often does not clearly understand.

And our young people of today might with justification ask - What is it in the nature of things that gives men in government bureaus that superior intelligence and greater sense of morality than we common people outside of government offices can be expected to possess? And with what prescience do they, and those who sit around government tables writing rules and regulations with them, profess to know so much more than we, ourselves, know about honesty, morality and the ethics of business and social conduct, as to give them the right to dictate mandatory directives and expect us to submit to their synthetic and compromised codes of conduct? Some of us, no doubt, are a bad lot; but surely not all of us. However that may be, bureau rules and regulations treat us all alike, and the honest man is unnecessarily penalized for the anticipated unscrupulous act of the crook.

No one questions the fact that administrative government bureaus are necessary in a society as complex as our own, and a sound and reasonable exercise of that power provides protection where it is essentially needed. But the application of the police power of the state should be sparing indeed, and only exercised in its directive and punitive forms when the legislative and judicial branches of government must fail in the administration of justice. The indiscriminate, or ill advised exercise of the police power by government bureaus, however well intentioned it may be, can very quickly lead to the establishment of the police state, and the destruction of all liberty and freedom. The police power is the power to govern, but it is also the power to destroy. The bigger the government, the greater is the exercise of the police power.

Young people today know that they, as well as every man, woman and child in the country cannot escape the pressures of big government, although they may not be aware of the immediate source of those pressures. But they feel them, because all people feel them. And the young people don't like what they feel and see. The pressures around them are too great. Most of these young people, except the murderous, violent fringe, know that violence is to be condemned. But they believe, and not without some historical support, that notwithstanding sincere, and often not sincere, admonitions by politicians to avoid violence and disorder, and work things out around the conference table, nothing basic is going to be worked out in any such manner.

The established order of things, the deep prejudices, long established practices, and the financial interests of the "establishment" are too deeply rooted to vanish by mere talk. "Rules and regulations" of government bureaus will stand in spite of talk. Statute and case law is not going to crumble and fall apart over the conference table. The preparation and passage of new laws, without the thrust of some intelligent force is not to be affected by a controlling and presently satisfied "establishment" sitting at a conference table with young people who have revolutionary ideas of how people ought to be treated in a democracy.

Young America, and a lot of not so young America, is beginning to suspect a shadow of hypocrisy lurking in the gaps of a disjointed democracy. The democratic ideal, under the tenets of which men of all stations in life are said to have equal opportunities to enjoy the blessing of liberty and the pursuit of happiness, appears to many thinking men and women today, and particularly to the youngsters growing up in poverty, to be an unattainable ideal. Experience has impressed the hard lesson upon them that the political, social and economic forces of the Nation, in the rough and tumble of everyday life, offer no such opportunities as theory suggests, and no such liberty, and no such happiness. Great populations of people are caught in the vice of circumstance and unable to free themselves by any democratic process known to them, or by any yet suggested to them. And yet the pressures of bureaucracy are constantly holding them in a straight jacket of conformity which they cannot tolerate.

It is only fair to ask, - what are people going to do when they believe they see in government a shallow hypocrisy masquerading under the trappings of a democracy? Today some are resorting to violence; many to disruption of public affairs, educational conventions, and private enterprise. Others are organizing to protest in less objectionable ways. All young people, whether or not they have yet become activists, are concerned about the future in which they all must live.

But the distressed, the abused and the forgotten feel very honestly, I think, that change in basic concepts has never in the history of the world been accomplished with the "establishment" of any nation by talks across a conference table, unless the power and might of organized force (not necessarily physical) stood behind the chairs of the protesters. In the modern world the prejudices and established practices of entrenched wealth, coupled with political power, is not an easy combination to talk with over any kind of a table.

Violence, arson and murder provide no answer. Those who pursue these tactics within the framework of government are not worthy of assistance, and are not the type of people to bring within the social order of any society. There is no justification whatsoever for such action. Such acts only build a stone wall of resistance. No intelligent person can sympathize with a murderous, violent arsonist. Decent, peaceful citizens, no matter how much they may sympathize with the unfortunate lot of minority groups, including the young dissidents, do not want anything to do with people who murder, burn and violently assault; much less do they want to bring such persons into the same society with themselves. There are other forceful ways to compel the "establishment" to act favorably, and such ways are now, hopefully, being discovered by thoughtful leaders of all well-intentioned and intelligent people seriously approaching the matter of social reform.

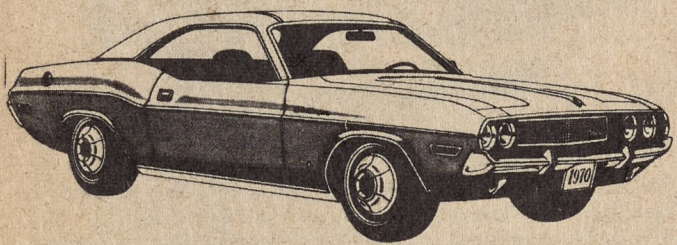

For a long time there has been building up in this country unhealthy restraints and pressures directly imposed upon the people by a powerful centralized bureaucracy (national, state and local) which prefers to treat men and women as some anomalous "public" rather than as individual human beings. This bureaucracy has lost all sense of reality and balance and sees a "public" instead of individuals in an age when individual excellence is the principal factor in National progress. Our first deep concern, therefore, should be, I believe, in a long range approach to political and government reform, to strip big government down to size, root out the power structure of bureaucracy, and begin to recognize people as individuals and not as numbers and groups computer data.

I should like to say much more, Mrs. Weller, but I am afraid the "law dictionary" is suffering, and I must get back to it.

Very sincerely yours,
JOHN M. CARTWRIGHT

the 70's are here!

OUTLOOK on the
EXCITING NEW
CARS of the 70s

It's that time of year again! Monterey Peninsula auto dealers are displaying their new 1970 models, and crowds are flocking to the showrooms to see what the manufacturers are offering. After a banner sales year, local automen are anticipating further sales gains with their sparkling array of new models and new options.

The emphasis is on more rakish styling, more power, and more options for the selective car buyer. More sporty models in the intermediate class are being offered by most dealers, riding the crest of the demand for sleek cars in the medium price field. In the luxury class, all car makers have added even more luxury and comfort features, with longer, lower styling. Many offer radial ply tires as standard equipment, with new safety features being refined and beautified.

FORD

Ford Division passenger cars for 1970 are highlighted by all-new Torino and Thunderbird lines, a new luxurious LTD Brougham series, a new mid-range engine, premium quality tires standard on most car lines and more comfort, convenience, safety and security features.

"This may be the year of the intermediates, and Torino is our most dramatically redesigned car. Torino is longer, lower and wider with aerodynamic styling, hot performance engines and options, and our first intermediate-size four-door hardtop models," he said.

Thunderbird also has an all-new look with a bold front-end design with longer, lower hood, a forward-thrusting grille and exposed headlamps.

More quiet-car luxury is offered in the standard-size Ford. The entire Ford line presents a more formal appearance with new grilles, ornamentation and rear-end design.

Mustang comes on stronger and sportier than ever with design changes, hotter engines, bright "Grabber" colors, and interiors with upbeat stripes and houndstooth checks.

Maverick, introduced in April as the first car of the Seventies, will remain Ford's "simple machine" with very few changes. Mavericks produced after September 30 will have side marker lights which flash with the turn signals, and a three-way locking steering column.

CHEVROLET

The Monte Carlo -- a totally new personal luxury car -- headlines Chevrolet's new models for 1970.

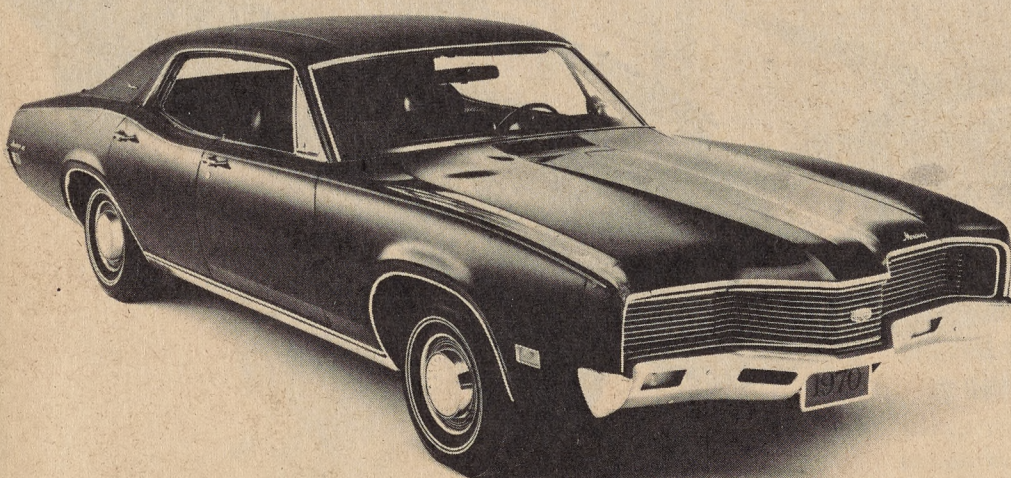

Monte Carlo offers the youthful, sophisticated buyer a blend of individual, high fashion styling and intermediate-size handling and performance.

The big Chevrolet has new styling and added power for 1970 and Chevelle has an all-new appearance. Improvements in these lines are incorporated in both sizes of Chevrolet station wagons. The fast-selling Nova has fresh appeal in its new models.

A four-door hardtop is offered in the Montego line for the first time. Concealed headlights are standard equipment on the Montego MX Brougham. Concealed windshield wipers, bias-belted tires, and oval steering wheel have been added to the list of standard equipment on all models. Two completely new 351-cubic-inch engines and a 429 power plant have been added to the list of available engines.

A company spokesman said that among important 1970 engine changes, the base V-8 of the big Chevrolet is increased to 350 cubic inches from 327 cubic inches in 1969 to give added power for options such as air conditioning that continue to grow in customer popularity.

Two new high torque 454 cubic inch V-8's replace 427 cubic inch engines offered on the big Chevrolet in 1969.

LINCOLN-MERCURY

The first completely redesigned Lincoln Continental in nearly a decade and an all-new expanded line of intermediate-size Montegos and Cyclones highlight Lincoln-Mercury Division's automobiles for 1970.

The new Lincoln Continental, while undergoing the most substantial change since 1961, remains clearly identifiable as a Continental with a strong grille theme and understated elegance.

The division's intermediate line has been dramatically redesigned for 1970 and consists of three Montego series, including a new four-door hardtop, and three performance-oriented two-door hardtops, the Cyclone, Cyclone GT and Cyclone Spoiler.

The Cyclones have a racy look with a forward-thrusting grille and unique European-type running lights. Montegos share the same contemporary profile, with the addition of a luxurious, full width grille.

Cougar for 1970 features an entirely new front end appearance with a vertical textured grille.

DODGE

Headlined as the "only new entry in the sports compact field", Dodge makes a strong bid for a bigger share of this rapidly growing market with its all new 1970 Challenger.

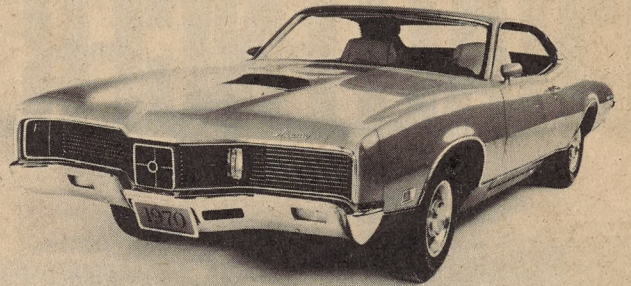

A choice of nine different power plants from the 225 Six all the way up to the powerful 426 Hemi two-4bbl. is available. The "little limousine", Challenger SE offers vinyl-covered formal roof, rich vinyl bucket seats and matching door trim.

The 1970 Monaco offers tasteful styling, quiet ride and rich appointments. New engineering features offer a "body that literally floats quietly on its undercarriage"

Charger for 1970 sports a massive new front end and continental-type bumper. Hidden headlights, rallye suspension, rallye instrument panel, and racing gas cap are standard on all Chargers.

A longer hood and powerful new rear style treatment highlight the 1970 Dart. More than 50 options are available for the buyer to add as many personal touches as he wants. Four engine choices and a choice of three-on-three, three-or-four on-the-floor or three-speed automatic make this popular car even more appealing.

MERCURY CYCLONE GT - This is Lincoln-Mercury's new entry in the growing sporty intermediate market. The Cyclones are offered with a host of power plants including two all-new 351-cubic-inch V-8's and three versions of the 429-cubic-inch engine. Front and rear air foils are standard on the Cyclone Spoiler.

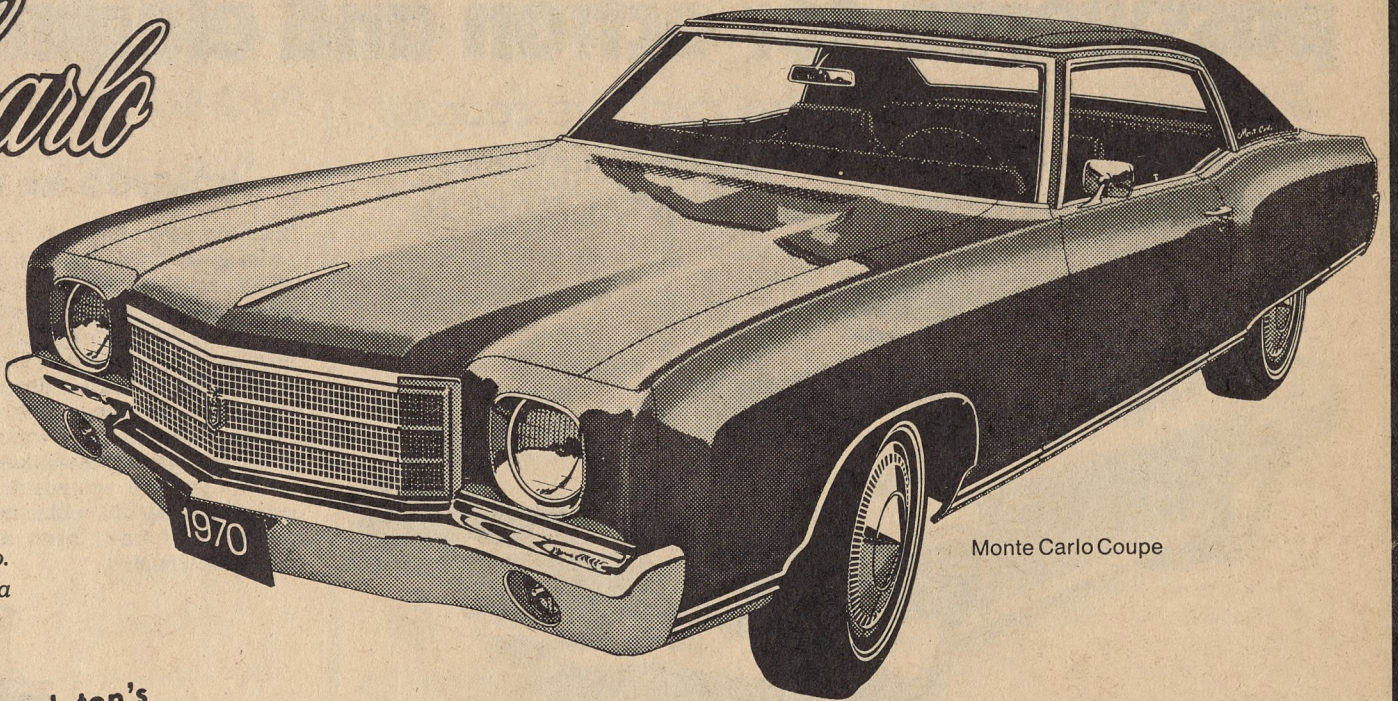

CHEVROLET MONTE CARLO - This totally new Chevrolet features a distinctive new grill and the longest hood of any car in Chevrolet history -- a full six feet from grill to windshield. It is 9 inches shorter than the Impala, more than an inch lower and four inches less in width. There is one model -- a 2-door hardtop coupe.

CHRYSLER-PLYMOUTH

The new Barracuda Gran Coupe, one of three brand new Barracuda's, is being pushed by Chrysler Corp. as "the most totally changed car in America". The company calls it the lowest four-seater in the industry, and the widest-track car of any American-made sporty car. New, racy styling and a choice of many power plants makes the car a strong entry in the sporty-car stakes for 1970.

The new Fury has a wider-stance look, with more width between the rear wheels. The new Belvedere offers performance and economy with its standard 318 V-8 that runs on regular fuel.

The Duster, a brand-new Plymouth in the Valiant line, features a distinctive grill with integrated parking lamps and smooth, curved sides set off by ventless windows. The swept back roof line blends into a short rear deck.

Standard safety features in all 1970 Plymouths are larger rear reflectors and lights, increased fuel tank impact protection, lane-change turn signal, locking steering wheels and improved seat belt anchorage.

The new Chryslers are heralded as the "ideal combination of quietness, stability and control", from its blending of torsion-bar suspension, unibody construction and "Sound Isolation System". Traditionally less flamboyant in style than its competitors in the luxury class, the 1970 Chrysler runs to quieter styling facets.

DODGE CHALLENGER - This is Dodge Division's all-new entry in the sporty specialty car field. The Challenger is wide for stability and security, and features deeply molded and indented doors, flush door handles, inside and out, and bucket seats. Nine different models are offered, from a 225 Six to the 440 Hemi.

PLYMOUTH 'CUDA POWER - The "Rapid Transit System Barracuda" offers the same heavy duty suspension system as the bigger Plymouths. This model is equipped with front and rear anti-sway bars and "Shaker" head scoop standard with Hemi engine. A host of Rallye options and "hairy" styling are sure to attract the young in heart.

Fiesta at Carmel Mission Sunday

The annual fiesta de San Carlos de Borromeo at the Carmel Mission Basilica will be held Sunday, from noon until 5 p.m. The program will be in the old Spanish tradition but it will also appeal to modern tastes. There will be a chicken barbecue, games, and continual entertainment. Manuel Campos and his mariachi band, Panchita Mendoza the Spanish dancer, and the dance team of Pat Blanchard and Joyce Kephart will keep the party gala. The teenagers will dance to the music of the "87th Off Broadway Jam Sound." There will be something for the entire family. Everyone is welcome.

RENDERED SPEECHLESS as thermometers are thrust into their mouths, Alex Olmstead, left, and his brother Charles, eye one another with amusement. The occasion was the visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile in the month of May during which time 85 donors responded to the request for blood. The Bloodmobile will return to the C.V. Firehouse Tues. Oct. 14th, the drawing will be held from 3:00 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. All prospective donors are urged to take note of the date as another effort will be made to reach the 100 pint mark of much needed blood.

Maxine Shore's students take honors

In the Herald's Midsummer Poetry Contest, exactly one dozen of Maxine Shore's students (either past or present) took prizes. Mrs. Shore encourages all students to write poetry, which she says helps their prose. At the beginning of each class, she reads original poetry by those in attendance.

The Professor Toro prize went to Mrs. Marge Haller of Carmel. Marge is well-known for her Red Cross work. Honorable Mention in the Toro contest went to Mrs. Jeanne Graham, Mrs. Lois Wilson, and Al Teaguemeir.

Poet Laureate for 1969 is Mrs. Olive Applegate of Pacific Grove. Second runner-up is Mrs. Eleanor Atkinson, Carmel. A special award went to Steve Gann, whose reports on his experiences in Vietnam have been published in each of the Peninsula papers. Honorable Mention went to Betty Garner, Mrs. Phoebe Hoffman, Mrs. Marge Haller, Mrs. Lucille Liemert, and Mary El Gayman.

"Writing for Publication" classes started at Carmel High School last week. The beginning class on Thursday night had 34 people present. There were 31 in the advanced workshop on Tuesday night. It's not too late to enroll for the fall session and become one of Maxine Shore's Protegees. (I happen to be one, too, having attended the classes for the past three years.)BWW
